	Foundations: Core Skills Training for Sex Ed is a national model for training teachers to implement high-quality sex education. Developed by Answer and Cardea, two national leaders in sex education and training, The Foundation initiative aims to ensure that all sex educators are equipped with the skills needed to effectively facilitate student learning, create safe and inclusive classroom environments and provide opportunities for meaningful skill-building and values exploration, regardless of the specific curriculum they teach.
	The 8-hour, interactive training teaches participants how to help youth and adults who are experiencing mental health or addiction issues. Topics include anxiety, depression, substance use, disruptive behavior disorders (including ADHD) and eating disorders. All participants will be certified in YMHFA.
	Systems Thinking/Systems Changing™ is used by teams in workshop settings to experience what it takes to make effective systemic change in schools. It teaches youth, educators, school boards and councils, leadership teams, school administrators, educational consultants and reformers about the structures and strategies that schools need to be continuously improving learning organizations that are the best they can be. Systems include programs, initiatives, practices and policies that impact a school and/ or community.
